Hospital here gets 2 million

LIVERMORE — The Veterans Hospital in Livermore will be celebrating its 50th anniversary this year with a most welcome present — a $2 million addition.

That addition, which will house administrative, research, social work and nursing servics, was approved Friday by the federal Veterans Administration and represents a substantial commitment to the continued operation of that hospital facility.

The V.A. Hospital applied for a new facility more than three years ago, after seismic safety studies revealed seven of the hospital's 13 structures were declared unsafe.

At that time, according to Hospital Director John Lee, the hospital shuffled its administrative and research facilities into trailers on the grounds of the 118-acre site in order to insure all medical needs at the hospital were housed in structurally sound buildings.

The new two-story building will allow all of those scattered services to be housed in one structure.

The building will contain 17,000 square feet and is the first major addition to the hospital grounds since 1949.

"We have been planning and hoping for this," Lee said, "and now, it looks like we're on the road back."

According to a spokesman for Senator Alan Cranston, who is chairman of the V.A. Administration's Subcommittee on Hospitals and Health Care, the V.A. Administration will advertise for bids for the $1.9 million structure in April and plans to award a construction contract in August. Construction is expected to begin in 1976 and be completed in the fall of 1977.

Agencies split over East Ave.

LIVERMORE — East Avenue of the future between Madison Avenue and Greenville Road will be either five lanes with combination sidewalk-bike paths or four lanes with bike paths along the street and separate sidewalks.

It all depends on who gets their way — the county or the city.

Alameda County and Livermore Public Works Departments are (designing the future alignment of East Avenue as part of a joint project.

The county is proposing a 120-foot right-of-way for three west-bound and two east-bound lanes on the avenue between Rober Livermore Park and the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

County plans also include a 15-foot sidewalk-bike path; 18-foot medians, and left turn lanes of 12-feet with 6-foot medians.

The city prefers a 104-foot right-of-way for a four lane street with eight-foot lanes for emergency parking and on-street bike paths.

Livermore plans also call for 16-foot medians and 11-foot left turn lanes with five-foot medians.

City Public Works Director Dan Lee is asking the city council tommorow night to approve Livermore's standards for the East Avenue alignment and to urge county acceptance.

In a report to council on the matter, Lee presents arguments against the county's combination sidewalk-bike paths and for the city's on-street bicycle lanes.

Pointing to the large number and speed of bicyclists on East Avenue, to put a path with the sidewalk would not be appropriate, said Lee.

"The on-street bike path is the safest and most convenient facility for bikes," his report states. "The number of streets and driveways along East Avenue will make sidewalk bicycling not only inconvenient but unsafe as well."

Referring to county calculations of future East Avenue traffic and the need to have the street five lanes, Lee said, "We don't believe that sufficient weight was given to the fact that there will be alternate major street routes in 20 years which will share the traffic load.

Mori voices views on issues

— Marijuana use should be discouraged but also decriminalized.

—More value should be placed on woman as homemakers but women should also have free choice of careers.

—More emphasis should be placed on rehabilitation but penalties for the chronic criminal should be clearly defined.

Those are some of the views of Floyd Mori, Democratic candidate for the 15th Assembly District seat and currently mayor of Pleasanton. Mori , Republican Guy Puccio and Lonnie Moore of the American Independent Party will vie for that legislative post on March 4.

Mori is a man who believes in what some would call "old-fashioned, traditional" ideas about life and morality. He is a family man, who feels home and community are of the utmost importance.

Those views are reflected most strongly in his conception of the law and how state government should — or, more accurately, should not — involve itself in the affairs of state of local government.

On the question of marijuana usage, Mori said the drug should not be legalized as it has "bad effects health-wise and social-wise. However, a "felony is too heavy a penalty for possession or usage," Mori added. "Some of our youths get involved innocently. I think it (usage) must be decriminalized to a certain point and I would support legislation" to that effect.

Mori, a non-drinker, also sees a problem with the abuse of alcohol but believes, "In terms of society's values, the two are different. There is a degree of hypocrisy," he admits, "but society accepts social drinking and I have to go along with that social value. I don't feel I can impose my personal values on the 15th District," he added.

Drug abuse, whether it is alcohol, marijuana, or whatever, can bring social and economic problems but "as long as it is not detrimental to those around, it should be a person's own decision," Mori said. "A person ought to be responsible for his own actions, however," he added.

Drug pushers and those who endanger the lives of others through drug abuse should be severely punished, Mori maintains and those crimes and the penalties for them should be more clearly defined.

And, he added, "Everyone ought to be equal under the law regardless of station or who you are, a judge, assemblyman, governor, whoever."

Mori feels the courts are placed in a difficult position because penalties for various crimes are not clearly defined, which results in a somewhat arbitrary system of justice.

He also believes penalties should be "tougher, especially for the chronic criminal" even those under 18. Rehabilitation is an important element, Mori said, with juveniles "who have made a mistake" but by putting the chronic juvenile offender in that category, Mori believes, "it nurtures a haughtiness for the criminal justice system."

EQUAL RIGHTS

Mori said the Equal Rights Amendment has his full support. "There are too many areas where women are second class citizens," he added. There are "basic differences", however, and, Mori dos not feel the ERA goes far enough in protecting women.

Mori believes the women's movement has been good and rational but feels it has resulted in an under-valuing of the traditional role of a woman as wife and mother. "If a woman chooses to be a wife or chooses to compete in the marketplace, she should have the right," he said, "and should be judged on her capabilities."

He added, however, "I think a woman's traditional role has great value. Housework should not be a demeaning, trivial job."

Mori sees the institution of marriage as strong and valid and feels "too many people are going into marriage unprepared."

He added, "Human beings have to learn how to make commitments and marriage should be a much more careful choice and decision."

ENERGY SOURCES

Mori supports the continuing research and development of nuclear energy as a necessary alternative to fossil fuels.

He admits there are potential dangers but said, "It's going to be difficult to develop any kind of fail-safe system. We haven't in the past," he added and those potential dangers "should not curtail research on nuclear power."

He pointed out. "Riding in an airplane or driving a car is potentially dangerous but you are going to have problems when you attempt to solve any kind of problem."

EDUCATION

Mori believes local school systems ought to have more control over their own districts and more emphasis should be placed on basic educational skills at the primary level.

"The bigness of education and the attempt to administer it on a state levl has brought a lack of coordination and effectiveness on the local level," he said. "The state should develop criteria," he added, "but leave the decisions on how to meet those criteria to the local school systems."

Mori supports equity in education but does not believe that necessarily means "equal dollars to each child. I don't think every community should produce the same kind of educational system," he added.

If more time were spent on the basic educational skills at the lower grade levels, particularly the primary grads, Mori emphasized, "We would not have to spend expensive college dollars teaching people how to read and write."

Is center site price too high?

If Pleasanton wants to capture that new county administrative center on a site close by the city's Civic Center "then the community is going to have to do better than the $120,000 per acre which is the initial appraisal given for the land."

Supervisor John D. Murphy offered that comment as the county board of supervisors "gets very close to making a decision" on the placement of that center, to include a court house to serve all three valley communities. It was recently announced that the site search narrowed down to three, including two in Pleasanton and one near the existing Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center.

"We can hardly put out one million dollars for a site when the county already owns excess land at Santa Rita plus another 160 acres across 580 at the Staples Ranch," Murphy advised The Times.The supervisor also revealed that "we can have 53 acres on that hilltop (south of Pleasanton Elementary School on First Street) for $9000 an acre, and sell off a good portion of the total."

Another site just south of Pleasanton, as part of an 18 - acre piece owned by Wm. Marsh, "presents some problems in terms of access that could be expensive," Murphy believes.

The county paid the federal government $6000 an acre for just over 900 acres west from Tassajara Road, and that is being reserved in part for a new county prison. The early decision to also place the valley's court house on that same piece of land was challenged by a consultant's report which suggests that an administrative center "closer to an existing urban center" would better serve the county's investment.

Council to view sewer situation

PLEASANTON — A proposed police dog program and discussion of strategy in the sewer situation will face the city council at 8 p.m. Monday at the Pleasanton Justice Court.

The council will be asked to authorize $10,000 to hire a consultant who will have the task of insuring Pleasanton's interests are represented in futur spwer negotiations and to insure resolution of that chronic problem proceeds as expeditiously as possible.

Council will also consider a request from Acting Director of Public Safety Walt McCloud to establish a canine unit for thp Police Department, consisting of one dog and one officer.

In addition, council will discuss the legal procedure to be followed if Mayor Floyd Mori is elected to the Assembly on March 4 and adoption of a priority schedule for street improvements to be funded by the Federal Urban Aid Program.

Other items on the agenda include a request from Buenas Vidas Ranch for support for their efforts to use the Arroyo Del Valle Sanatorium buildings and grounds, award of bid for Phase 1 of Century Park and a hearing on the annual weed abatement program.

He may find ceiling soon

Al Wehrsdorfer's 550 hours flying time may climb to a head the weekend of Mar. 15 - 16 at San Jose Municipal Airport during the Pacific Regional competition for the U.S. Precision Flying Team.

Al, Jr., the 19-year-old offspring of Edna, a Times reporter, and Al, Sr., an executive of the Flintkote Co., has been flying since he was 16, and intends to enter commercial or corporate flying in the future. But for now, there's the Pacific Regionals.

Some 50 entrants are scheduled for the San Jose event, from which five will go to the national level in Sante Fe, New Mexico, this April.

The top four from the nationals — considered the "most precise pilots" — will venture to Sweden in August to represent the United States in world competition.

While Al, Sr., has a private license, Al, Jr., has attained both commercial and instrument licenses.

He'll fly a Cessna 172, fixed - gear plane in San Jose, rated at 145 hp. with a top speed of 120 mph, and a ceiling of 12,500 feet.

Why? "Because this is precision flying," he answered, "and this is the best plane for this type of competition. It's got good landing characteristics. and these are very important in precision flying."

Al will be watched on take-offs and landings — three power-on and three power-off landings — as well as approach patterns and his ability to be precise and tight.

"It's to see how competent a pilot is," he said, adding there'd be no acrobatics or racing.

A business management major at San Jose State University, and a graduate of Livermore's Granada High School in June, 1973, Al was "turned on" to flying by his father.

"We've owned or rented aircraft since I was two," he said.

Al started flying when he was 16, did his minimum 40-hours, but had to wait till he turned 17 to get his private license.

Then it was 200-hours to his commercial license and a wait till he was 18.

Forty additional hours brought him his instrument rating in April of last year.

To date he's done a round-trip to Florida, a hop up to Spokane, Washington, and another to Montana's Glacier National Park, plus a number of trips for Aircraft Multiple Listing Service to Oregon, Nevada, and southern California.

Al's been working for Aircraft MLS for the past year and a half selling planes.

Not the worst job for a college sophomore.

It's hard to peg his home town. He was born in Indiana, then quickly moved to New Jersey, Michigan, Connecticut, and back to New Jersey before settling in the Valley.

Al needs another 50-hours flying time before he qualifies for his airtaxi-charter license, and a total of 1,100 hours before he's acceptable as a commericial pilot.

"And I'd probably have to be 21," he added.

Surprisingly, Al's never been to the infamous Reno Air Races, although he's attended the Merced and Watsonville air shows, major west coast atrtractions.

Should he get to Sweden, Reno won't matter.

AL WEHRSDORFER

Demo split in ranks is labeled fiction

A "Democratic revolt" aimed at swinging that party's support away from Floyd Mori and onto Guy Puccio in the 15th Assembly District race got underway throughout the valley this weekend, but major Democratic office holders are pretty well united in rejecting the campaign.

Admittedly unhappy with the first - ballot victory by Mori over William Vandenburgh, the more liberal contender from Hayward, some valley Democrats are now urging members of that party to switch over to Puccio, the Republican in the March 4 run - off with Mori.

One of those telephoned appeals suggested that "if we get Puccio elected this time, we can always dump him in 1976 in favor of a real Democrat." A similar pitch was sent to Leo McCarthy, Speaker of the Assembly and the titular head of Democratic Party action at the legislative level. The message to McCarthy — repeated on Saturday in another session that would involve Robert Pearson, former mayor of Pleasanton — was to "dump Mori now and then come back with Vandenburgh in 1976."

The reasoning, according to one source, is that "these Vandenburgh people fear that if Mori wins this time, he will be almost unbeatable in 1976." That same interpretation was offered by Ronald Hyde, prominent Dublin Democrat and an admitted Mori supporter.

"We have checked out all these rumors and reports of a split in the valley's Democratic ranks," Hyde said, "but it all apparently springs from the imagination and the pen of one reporter for The Independent. There is nothing more to it than that."

Bob Steffenauer, one of the founders of the Pleasanton Democratic Club and a party spokesman for the last 25 years, acknowledged that "I've heard rumors of this telephone campaign, but I don't know who authorized these people to speak for the Democratic Party." Steffenauer, who said he had worked for Joyce LeClaire in some past campaigning, is "backing Mori all the way" in the March 4 race.

Supervisor John D. Murphy, the only Democratic office holder in the valley, rapped the "dump Mori for Puccio" campaign as "just plain stupid. If they think Mori is such a weak Democrat, they can always let him prove that himself over the next 15 months and then still elect another Democrat in June of 1976."

Murphy however is confident that "Mori has the background and the intelligence" to succeed at the state legislative level. "He is certainly far more qualified than Guy Puccio who couldn't even get himself named to a second term on the Alameda County Assessment Appeals Board. You can say that Puccio simply wasn't mature enough for that board, and that's putting it mildly," Murphy said. Puccio had been appointed to the Assessment Appeals Board by Robert Hannon, then a member of the board of supervisors.

Mori responded to reports of the valley telephone campaign with this comment. "It is unfortunate, particularly in terms of party unity. I am concerned also with the personal attacks being levelled at myself by a small group of people, using one reporter on The Independent as their voice. This kind of thing serves no one — not the valley, and certainly not the Democratic Party."

As to any possibility that Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy will drop him because of this campaign, Mori noted that "I just got through talking to Leo ten minutes ago, and he is backing me all the way, and urging all Democrats to do likewise."

Mori added that "every major Democratic office holder in the county" will also announce support for his candidacy "in a mailer to come out this week." That list will include Congressman Pete Stark, State Senator John Holmdahl, Assemblyman Bill Lockyer, Supervisors Tom Bates, Fred Cooper Charles Santana and John Murphy, Congressman Don Edwards of San Jose and Fremont districts and Governor Brown.

Program cuts top agenda

The first salvos in what Promises to be a long and hotly-contested series of negotiations between disgruntled teachers and the Murray Elementary School District may be fired at Monday night's meeting.

The board members will retire to a closed personnel session shortly after the 8 p.m. starting time at Nielsen School and discuss Possible program cuts if the upcoming revenue limit increase election should fail. Those cuts are expected to include more than 10 teaching jobs, which has roused the ire of the Murray Educators' Associatgon(MEA).

The teachers claim that the district can make the necessary budget cuts without eliminating too many teaching positions, and should the tax measure fail on March 4, will undoubtedly bargain not only for salary but for the number of teaching positions.

At the same meeting, the Certificated Employees' Council(CEC), which represents all the teachers in negotiations with the district, will present their official requests for 1975-76.

A summary of the official request revealed that the teachers would ask for almost 21 per cent increases over last year, when step increments, the 5.2 per cent that the teachers did not get last year that the district has a "moral obligation" to give this time around and cost of living raises are included.

Transfer policies and greivance procedures will also be negotiated, as well as the calendar(number of teaching days).

Weather

Mostly fair through today but with increasing high clouds. Warming trend. Highs in the 60s with lows in the upper 30s and 40s. Variable winds 5 to 15 miles per hour.

Say 'ummm'

Ron Johansen gets a personal preview of the St. Charles Borromeo Teen Club's Dime - A - Scoop dinner Sunday by Cindy Eason as Linda Brown laughingly observes the scene. The club will sponsor the dinner from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Catholic church, 1315 Lomitas Ave., Livermore. Scoops of casseroles, salad and desert will be 10 cents each with free coffee and milk. Proceeds from the event will go towards a teen ski trip in March to Norden. A bingo/white elephant game will follow Sunday's dinner. The public is invited to the events.

Parents voice views at Donlon

It took an eighth grade student at Donlon School to point out to those parents feeling negative about the school that things are not as bad as they were making them sound.

"When you went to school, say, ah, about, 100 years ago," said Chris Fuller, "you wanted things to be changed because you did not like the way they were. Now you are here saying things should be changed back to what you didn't like when you were in school. The kids here at Donlon like what is being offered, we don't want it changed." Chris received a round of applause as he spoke coolly and positively about his school.

Approximately 250 parents gathered at Donlon School on Thursday night to have a cross section of opinions, feelings and requests heard.

A parent representing the Valley Trails area of Donlon School stated the three areas of concern he felt the parents in that area were particularly concerned with were: scholastic achievement, discipline, and closed campus.

These same three points seemed to be the feeling of the majority in attendance plus the concern of students smoking around the school. Again Chris spoke in defense of his generation, he stated that he was not positive, but quite sure, "that 99.9 percent of the kids who smoke have parents at home who smoke and in order to correct a problem there has to be cooperation from parents too."

When questioned by a parent in regard to a drug problem at the school, Mark Stott, principal of the school, replied, "I have no knowledge of a narcotics problem." He was further questioned if anyone had ever been brought into the office "freaked out", Stott remarked, "no, not to my knowledge."

A concerned parent felt it would help keep out "outsiders" who are supporters of drugs if closed campus was in effect.

It was suggested by one parent that a student council be formed to police the school and areas to catch the kids who are creating problems.

Following a lengthy discusssion, it was felt "children belong in the classroom, not out policing their fellow students." A teacher's feeling on having children perform the task of policing was that it is better to "love and trust kids than spend time policing them every minute."

The suggestion was also made that teachers be given this responsibility. After an explanation of state laws governing teachers and how they need a break to be able to do a better teaching job, the idea was dropped.

The idea of expelling or suspending kids caught doing wrong was submitted. Dr. Don Williams, superintendent of the Murray School District replied to this comment stating, "there is quite a difference between suspending a child and expelling him.

In order to expel a child from school it is an action must be taken by the board. The student is studied, reports are made by the student, teachers and principal, hearings are held and then the board determines if the child should be expelled. If expelled, a child cannot come back to school.

"If a child is suspended," he continued, "he is told what he is being suspended for and can be suspended up to 10 days only. If he comes back and the problem continues, he can again be suspended for another 10 days."

Touching upon the problem of discipline, it was Stott's feeling that each student is an individual case and has to be handled as such. No one rule can apply to all children he told the group . Williams added "What is punishment for one child could be a lot of fun for the next guy."

Under the closed campus, children must have a written permission slip the beginning of the year from their parents stating they may go home for lunch. This is kept on file all year long. If a child is caught going home who does not have a permission slip, the school notifies the parents and the problem is handled by them.

Scholastically speaking, Dr. Williams went into detail in comparing Donlon with schools in other districts and then was pinpointed with the question, "Where does Donlon rate in the Murray School District?"

Williams answered with, "about third". Neilsen rates first, Lydiksen second and then Donlon.

This led to another concern of the parents and that was the pod system of schools. Neilson is not a pod, however Lydiksen is.

Concerns were expressed as to how effective the pod system is in children's learning ability. A teacher commented that most children adjust to the system, but some take a little longer than others. Another teacher felt the pod system is very effective for learning and that Donlon had not as yet used its full potential in methods that could be incorporated into teaching.

When a parent inquired about the possibility of putting up walls in the pods, another parent stated, "a careful survey should be taken before this is considered as she for one liked the system and knew there were others who felt the same way."

The Murray School "hot lunch" program also became part of the discussion and this was explained by Williams As having been discontinued about four years ago because of lack of participation of parents allowing their children to buy lunch at school and therefore the program ended up operating at a loss.

The question arose as to when the new intermediate school would be in operation and how funds are obtained for a new school. Dr. Williams explained schools were funded from bonds and that the 1972 bonds would be used for this new school, however they are presently waiting for an agreement to be worked out with the seller of the land or to go to condemnation. Hopefully, work on the site will start this spring and the school would open in January of 1977.

Preceding the meeting, Stott distributed a list of "Issue of Control" (behavior) and the "Action Taken" to members of the audience. This list is available at the school office for those unable to attend the meeting Thursday night.

Before the meeting came to a close, one parent requested that a parent panel be established to work with the school in helping to solve the problems.

In a conversation with Stott on Friday, he stated he definitely plans to form a panel and work on solving the problems discussed at the meeting. He will be sending a questionaire home to get an accurate feed back from issues discussed at the meeting, particularly closed campus.

It is Stott's concern if the parents are not satisfied with the written permission system, does this mean if a mother writes a note saying it is okay for her child to come home for lunch, he will have to call the mother and say, "sorry, we have a closed campus no child is permitted to leave the school grounds."

LAVWMA Seeks 208 Designation

SACRAMENTO — The Sacramento door is still open to the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency despite efforts by the Environmental Protection Agency to close it.

At issue is LAVWMA's year-long struggle to be designated the agency with authority to plan and implement a water management program for the valley. The agency which receives that "208" designation will be eligible for state and federal funds to help in the planning process.

The State Water Resources Control Board had originally named LAVWMA as the 208 agency for the valley but the EPA said they did not believe the area required the extent of study the 208 program envisioned.

Because of a potential lawsuit in another area of the state which the EPA has decided not to fight, however, the whole State of California will now be designated a "208 study area".

The Association of Bay Area Governments is seeking to become the designated agency for the Bay Area.

On Thursday, LAVWMA Director Liia Euler presented the local agency's case to the state water board and the result of that presentation is the state is willing to consider LAVWMA as the designated agency for the valley.

Euler's contention before the state board was that unless one specific agency is designated to study the valley watershed, nothing will be implemented. She listed nearly a dozen agencies which are currently getting involved in such a study under the auspices of the Bay Area Sewage Services Agency.

The Green Fantastic

Cova to ask state funds

The Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) steering committee Thursday night planned next month's drive on Sacramento to argue for $16,000 in State administered federal planning monies.

COVA applied last month for the funds and found itself 50th on the priority list, but when the uniqueness of the organization was recognized by HUD officials in Sacramento, they quickly jumped the Valley organization to 10th.

As successor to the late Valley Planning Agency, COVA is attempting to hold Valley-wide congresses in order to share input among different agencies with similar problems.

Operating on a six-month budget of $3,500, COVA applied to the state for operating funds that might be applied primarily to "clerical expenditures," according to Executive Director Bette Meyer.

Thursday night's meeting was called to plan the presentation to HUD officials, and was for "information - education type things, rather than developing policy," Meyer emphasized.

COVA will present its package for seminars in the coming year on air and water pollution, transportation, and general housing , hoping the agencies uniqueness and ability to coordinate local efforts will qualify it for the monies.

Meyers and Chairwoman Helen Tirsell will make the Mar. 3 presentation to Bill Wagner of the California Office of Planning.

Should COVA be awarded the $16,000, the funds will be matched in "services in kind," according to Meyer, and will cover adminfstration and planning costs, but not projects or action programs.

Meyer noted another potential source of funds from the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG), and said COVA planned to apply for them.

Talent harvest in Dublin

DUBLIN — Frank Sinatra had better watch his stuff, especially during the Dublin - San Ramon Exchange Club's "Search for Talent."

According to club spokesman Bill Foster, this Monday's preliminary contest at Pleasanton Elementary School Auditorium features some 40 junior division contestants, ages 10 - 15, following last Monday's primary contest in which 6- through 10-year-olds competed.

Sixteen junior division contestants bid their talents at the first showing, and will be weighed against Monday's 40.

"We were swamped with applications," according to Foster. "There were nearly 50 for the junior division alone, and 108 total."

The senior division (15 - 19) will compete Mar. 3, again at the school auditorium.

CATHOLIC CHURCH
Hostess Brewer attended her table guests diligently, including the Rev. Joseph McAllister who didn't seem to mind the attention.

LUTHERAN CHURCH
Janet Krause and Sharon Winterfeld obviously enjoyed a humorous quip by singing entertainers.

Interfaith lunch gets it together

The annual Inter-Faith Luncheon, sponsored for a sixth year by St. Augustine's Women's Club, was attended Thursday by nearly 250 women and representatives of religious denominations from throughout the valley.

A bountiful buffet, bright table decorations and favors (including a program with the surprise bonus of homemade recipes), lively barbershop entertainment by the "Sweet Adelines," a bracing talk by Sister Michele Renee on her adult education program, and repeated expressions of mutual respect and friendship — all contributed to an enjoyable afternoon, and the warm feeling that another step had been taken toward Christian unity.

Co-hosts of the luncheon were the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Trinity Lutheran Church, the Presbyterian Church and St. Augustine's Catholic Church.

LATTER DAY SAINTS
Bishop William Romney (standing) received 'top billing' on the program with his opening blessing. With him are Elders Gordon Bryner and Harold Jorgensen.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN'S CLUB
Charming hostess and program commentator Gail Lews serves dessert to Harriet Smith and Marcia Frohman, all of CWC.

Livermore Seniors plans Vegas outing

A "feeler" sign-up for a six-day trip to Las Vegas in April is on the agenda for today's meeting of the Livermore Senior Citizen Club at 1:30 p.m.

The early poll will help determine the number of buses needed. The trip, including transportation and lodging, will cost $100 per person. An itinerary will be issued at the final sign-up.

There are still openings for the trip to the Blossom Festival in Healdsburg Saturday, March 22. Buses for the outing to Petaluma Adobe State Historical Park, and a creamery-cheese factory can accommodate 17 more persons. For reservations for either trip, contact Ruth Stewart at 455-15-5 or Vera Paulsen at 447-2395.

Betty Ford takes criticism of ERA stand in stride

WASHINGTON (AP) — Betty Ford's mail at the White House is running 3 to 1 against her outspoken support of passage of the Equal Rights Amendment — ERA — to the Constitution to end sex discrimination.

Press Secretary Sheila Weidenfeld said that mail the White House has counted shows 360 in praise of Mrs. Ford's efforts and 1,128 against.

The First Lady's staff was not reluctant to announce the figures, and Mrs. Ford was reported unperturbed by the reaction. In fact, she expected it, according to her secretary. Mrs. Ford explained:

"It's those who are against ERA who are doing the writing. Those who are for it sit back and say 'good for her — push on.' "

Mrs. Ford has been telephoning and writing legislators in several states where ERA has come up to action recently. Thirty-four of the necessary 38 states have ratified the amendment.

"It is wonderful to have a First Lady who is concerned about people and not just about clothes or trees — trees are fine but human dignity and freedom concern me more," reads one letter to the First Lady.

On the negative side one sentiment was "What right do you have as a representative of all women to contact the legislators and put pressure on them on them to pass the hated ERA? That is below the dignity of the First Lady of the land."

New women's rap group

For women interested in talking about and sharing personal experiences and problems in an open, warm and caring atmosphere, a women's rap group begins Wednesday, March 5 from 1 to 3 p.m.

To register, call facilitator Jill O'Hara or the Dublin Hotline, Inc. at 462-5544

The rap group will meet at the Hotline Center, 4361 Railroad Ave., Suite C, Pleasanton, unless notified otherwise.

Upcoming YWCA meet

The changing image of women will be demonstrated in both the business and entertainment portions of the annual meeting of Southern Alameda County branch of the Oakland YWCA, to be attended by representatives from three valley Y-Wives clubs.

The newest change is in progress now at the Y-Wives Inter-club Council which includes Livermore, Pleasanton and Dublin clubs. The group is sponsoring a contest to find a new name for their organization.

According to Jean Knowles of Pleasanton, Southern Alameda County branch president, they believe the term "Y-Wives" is confusing and inadvertently excludes many women who could benefit from the club "morning-out" programs. Y-Wives recreational, education and social activities are open to all women.

The name-change decision for Y-Wives, as well as YWCA finances and by-laws will be covered in a "State of the Branch Report" at the annual meeting to be held March 3 in San Lorenzo. Following the business meeting, a reader's theater production entitled "Women of All Ages" will be presented.

Maja Jorgenson of the Livermore Y-Wives is among the six participants in the production which traces the changing image of women in literature written about women through the ages. The play includes excerpts from Euripedes, Shakespeare, Dickens, Tolstoy, Shaw and Ibsen.

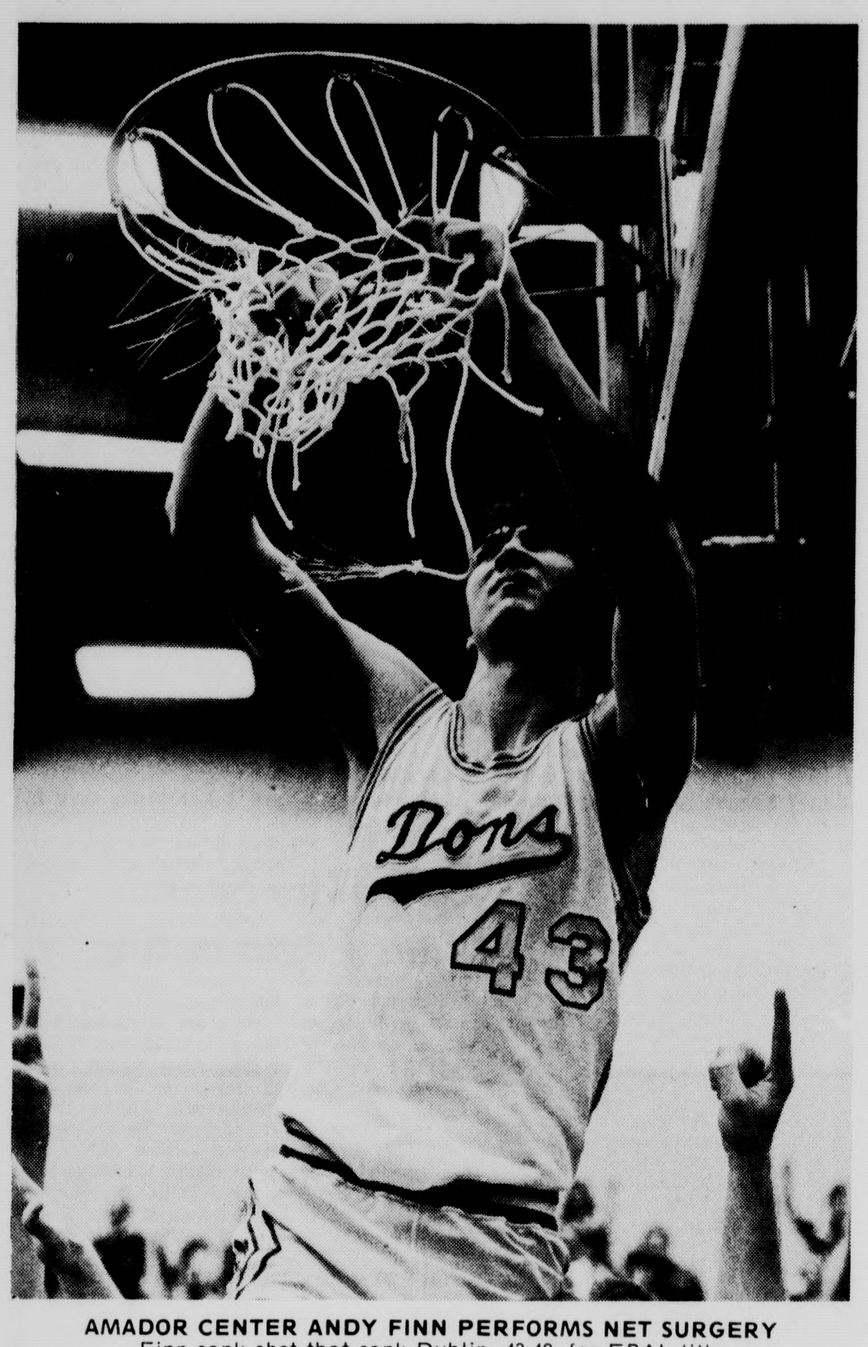
Dons take thriller, win EBAL crown



AMADOR CENTER ANDY FINN PERFORMS NET SURGERY
Finn sank shot that sank Dublin, 43-42, for EBAL title

First in the EBAL, last in the hearts of physicians everywhere.

That's the status of Amador Valley High's basketball team this morning, after the Dons won their second straight title Friday night.

To the chagrin of the President's Council on Physical Fitness, Amador added another malady to its medical chart, already replete with disease and mangled bones.

The Dons brought on cardiac arrest with a 43-42 decision over Dublin in the bulging Amador gym. Andy Finn's four-foot jumper with seven seconds to play was the final act in a drama that included five turnovers in the last half-minute.

The win cinched the EBAL championship for Amador, and erased Dublin's feint hopes for same.

"If the game would have ended in a deadlock, then there would have been some kind of justice," said Amador coach Skip Mohatt when it was through. "Both teams deserved to beat each other.

"I knew our kids would be ready, and I knew Dublin would. When you've got two teams like that you expect a low scoring game with both turning to the defense. And that's what it was."

"Our kids are dissappointed right now, and you hope that they would be," said Dublin boss Don Nelson. "They lost two one point games in a row (the other to Livermore Tuesday), and that was the championship. But they hustled and played hard and that's all you can ask."

Amador whittled away a five point Dublin lead in the final period, drawing to within 42-41 in the final minute on Andy Finn's free throw.

Then the Vigoro hit the Mixmaster.

In a span of 15 seconds, the teams traded five turnovers, and guard Rich Hall of the Dons committed one foul.

With 11 seconds to play Amador inbounded on the sideline near the Dublin basket. Jim Turner looped the ball to Finn on the baseline. He leaped over the craning arms of two Dublin defenders and dropped in the winning Points.

Andy finished as the game's leading scorer with 13, and the top rebounder with 15. Troy Roberson scored 10 for Dublin.

Mohatt, who wears voo doo charms around his neck to fend off the spirits, emerged from the game with his team intact. Hall and Jeff Hine did take nasty spills though. "Just the normal spills you get in a non-contact sport," Mohatt said, only half laughing at his own joke.

The Dons open Wednesday at Dublin High in the first round of the North Coast Section basketball tournament. Their opponent is the champion of the Hayward Area Athletic League.

"We'll be ready," Mohatt said, already looking past the EBAL title he had just won. "Our kids have risen to the occassion before, and they'll do it again. We'll represent the league well. And we'll be as healthy as we've been in the last two weeks."

Of course Amador has spent the last two weeks without co-captain Phil Hansen, sidelined by a broken ankle. He was in evidence Friday, cutting down the net for the Amador trophy case.

His absence was felt in the first quarter however, as the Dons committed eight turnovers against a nagging press. It had been Hansen's job to dissect such defensive traps.

"It appears we have conficence problems without Phil," Mohatt said; "but you're asking about intangibles. If you ask if we lost the ball, I could tell you that. There's no excuse for a lack of confidence because we've got some good players. But an injury like Phil's does hurt more at the end of the year. The problem is more getting the lineup adjusted than it is just him.

"Apparently Dublin thought we were different without him because there's no way they would have gone to a zone defense in the second half with him shooting over it."

"Nelson is a good, smart coach," Mohatt conceded.

The championship, he added, has a different flavor for Amador this year. The Dons carried a two-game lead into the stretch, then nearly blew it with a loss at Granada Tuesday, and the nerve-wrencher Friday night.

"With a two game lead last year you could have relaxed and just waited at the Holiday Inn near the Oakland Coliseum for the team," he cracked. But this year it was a good team chasing problems all year and hanging in there."

Amador found a new trouble Friday night, foul line failure. The Dons hit just seven of 22 free throws, or 31 per cent. That's the team's worst performance of the year.

From the field however, the team improved to 40 per cent.

Turner and Rob Yackley helped out the offense with eight points apiece, and Yackley hauled down nine rebounds.

Hine's good defensive work limited Dublin's Rayford Roberson to nine points. Rayford countered with three or four outstanding shot blocks.

Duey, Street pilot Gordillo's rec cagers

The one-two punch of Lee Duey and Ray Street helped Gordillo's New York Life K.O. Sandia No.1, 53-31 in Livermore recreation basketball last week.

Both players scored 14 points, and combined for 18 in the second half as Gordillo's expanded a three-point bulge at intermission.

Joe Benjamin added nine points, and Randy Molitor, eight.

Mark Higuera had eight for the losers.

Associated Professions provided some dual dynamite, as Jim Brown scored 21 points, and Bob Sherman, 14, in a 44-27 rout of Parker Research.

Leading Parker scorer Fred Davis was held to just nine points.

The LLL Turnovers jumped on Sandia No.2, 43-24.

Rich Zwakenburg led the scoring with 12 points, and teammate Bob Harrach had 10.

John Smugursky and Al Jones had six apiece for Sandia.

Gael JV's insured of championship tie

Dublin High cinched at least a tie for the EBAL junior varsity basketball championship Friday night with a 62-53 victory over host Amador Valley.

The Gaels rolled to a 33-22 second half advantage to finish the year at 11-3.

San Ramon, 10-3 before last night's play, had a chance for a title tie with a victory over Amador in the season finale.

Dublin relied on balanced scoring, paced by Jerry Puertas' 16 points, 15 from Rich Barnes, and Ed LaPerle's 11. Puertas was outstanding on the boards as well.

Freshman Mike Taylor played a fine defensive game before fouling out in the final quarter.

Amador was paced by Dave VanNorden, who scored 10 points. John Sevo and Jim Yackley had nine each, and Don Hall scored eight.

An off-road plot?

The East Bay Regional Park District wants to spend $400,000 for an off-road motorcycle riding facility but the organization's land buyer is running into snags over a suitable site.

Even Livermore's Carnegie Park, a privately owned cycling plot, one of Northern California's best known, fails to measure up.

Directors for the park dislistened last week to a San Benito cattleman-turned-cycle park owner who said the venture can be profitable, if it can be done up right.

Then came district land buyer Hulet Hornbeck, who outlined five possible cycle-park sites, all unacceptable for varying reasons. Carnegie Park was one of the sites under study.

Problems with the Livermore facility include the fact it is situated outside of the park district. Also, Hornbeck said, bikers claim it is too remote, and that its hills are too steep.

Livermore VFW tourney entries almost complete

Two teams from the rugged Oakland Athletic League will take part in the second VFW Basketball Tournament beginning Thursday at Livermore High School.

Defending tourney champion McClymonds will take part, and will be joined by the third place OAL finisher, probably Oakland High.

First round pairings were released Friday by the co-host schools, Livermore and Granada. Some of the matchups aren't certain yet however, because of unfinished league races throughout the Bay Area.

The opening day schedule will kick off with a 4 p.m. contest between San Ramon, and that third place Oakland club.

At 5:30, Mack will face a tough Catholic Athletic League opponent, St. Joseph's.

Granada will play against San Juan of Sacramento's Metro League at 7 p.m., and Livermore will meet a Foothill Athletic League representative at 8:30.

At least two of the tourney teams will come from the East Bay's list of the top 15. Mack is in the ratings, as is Oakland.

A journey to Gaddini

Mike Zampa

Carolyn the secretary meets you at the reception counter of the design-award winning Kaiser Center in Pleasanton. An escort is mandatory, she says. They've just reinstituted some space-lock security system and if you breech the wrong threshold, a researcher's laser could leave a pile of rubble to spread over Kaiser's nearby gravel pit.

The course is through a hallway, down the stairs towards the basement and around the back of the sprawling complex. "We're sort of out in the boondocks," Carolyn says. "Up on the third floor they get carpets and everything. But this is where all the laboratories are."

An open door, rare in this center of mystery and muteness, signals the office of Paul Gaddini, commissioner for the North Coast Section of the California Interscholastic Federation.

The office is bare white stucco with what look like tire tracks running horizontally across the wall behind his desk. There is not the sumptuousness you would expect for a $22,000 a year administrator. Gaddini doesn't despair over the accomodations, however, or the salary which is the lowest of any full time commissioner in the CIF system. He's just happy to be here, and eager to share his domain with the press.

"We may be the most unkown organization in existence," he says, obviously intent on changing that image.

Gaddini is the chief administrator and baby sitter for prep sports from the Southern tip of Alameda County to the Oregon border.

His office, secretary and salary materialized just in the last couple of months. The position has traditionally been handled out of the occupant's home.

The North Coast Section is comprised of two representatives from each of 14 athletic leagues within its boundaries. Among them is the EBAL. Gaddini implements the policies set down by these representatives. They, in turn, take their que from league principals and coaches.

The 35-year old Danville father of three serves as sounding board, mediator and whipping boy for everyone in his jurisdiction with a key to the locker room.

In sports, where the competitive spirt spills over from the ball field to the meeting hall, it is a ticklish spot. "But it's an easy job," Gaddini says. "Because I like it, and I like the people I deal with."

Gaddini is young, but already the black Italian waves have washed out, leaving a glimmering gray. "My father was silver when he was 21," says Gaddini, attributing his fix to genetics. "But my wife says it's a vitamin deficiency."

Though he won't say so, the pressures of guiding athletic ships of state may be another contributing factor. These are tingling times for schools in Gaddini's section.

And with sports shivering in the chilly financial climate, survival becomes a concern.

Gaddini patiently listens to the divergence of feeling, then tries to implement the dictates of NCS directors. It is not simple in the present day, when there is seldom a clear mandate for action.

A case in point came last month, when the NCS voted to institute football playoffs. The vote favoring them was 12-11. The losing side politicked for hours following the decision, and stalled off agreement on a playoff structure.

The end result is that Gaddini must poll the schools in his baliwick to learn how they would set up the championship tournament — or if they would even consider participating.

"I was really proud of our section at that meeting," says Gaddini, who can stretch credulity with his composure. "The 11 were acting in the best interest of the people they represented, and that's what representative government is all about.

"My main goal is to gather input," he continues. "We have a tremendous resource in the personel of the schools, the coaches and administrators. It is a multi-million dollar resource. The only real idea I have is to take advantage of their knowledge."

Gaddini coached track briefly in the Catholic Athletic League, and for five years served as commissioner of that league. He was urged to apply for the vacant NCS job in 1972, by section president Dutch Williams of San Leandro High.

He admits to a zest for athletics spurned by a kind of Knute Rockne emotionalism. Cornball is the word he uses.

"Some people say I came from Glenn Miller and the single wing," Gaddini laugh; "and they say I don't belong with this generation."

"When I was a kid, I had one of those all-star baseball games, the kind where you spin the dial and it points to single, double or ground out. Well I had teams and a league, and I played a 150 game schedule and kept all the statistics. My mother wondered what she was raising. Well that just showed my love for sports.

"The change occured when I coached an eighth grade flag football team my senior year in high school. I realized the relationships possible with kids, and that the authority leader has a chance to be something special to them. This sounds corny, but in high school you have the chance to maintain that relationship between coach and athlete...

Kids and education are still the central theme in high school sports, Gaddini says, though California prep athletics inches towards big business. Gaddini's counterpart in the Southern Section retired last year at $33,000. Schools in that section can earn up to $10,000 for winning football playoffs.

Critics point to those figures and complain that soon high schools will look to athletic success for financial bonuses. Gaddini appreciates the dilemma.

We're not in the entertainment business," he says. "But we have to depend on gate receipts. We can't compromise the education value, yet we need the spectators. It is almost a contradiction."

The NCS will stage its first basketball championship beginning Wednesday, and again critics are saying it is merely another ploy to raise funds.

Gaddini backs the intent behind the playoffs though. In Southern California, he says, 85 per cent of athletes interviewed said their fondest memory of high school came in section playoffs. That, he says, is motivation for staging an NCS championship.

"Even if it lost money, what it means to the kids makes it worth while."

Mats tame feisty Mustangs

The REAL final score — expressed in total welts, bruises, scratches and fat lips — would not be known until Saturday morning.

But for the record, Granada scored 52 points, Monte Vista scored 46, and the near-capacity crowd left the Mustangs' gym Friday night wondering who were those other two men on the floor.

No blood, no foul, was the motto under the boards, as Official A and Official B directed their attention to body contact in the court's open spaces.

The new rule hurt the Matadors in the first half. Monte Vista's offensive rebounding was superb for a team which gave up an average of three to four inches per man. And the Matadors obliged by standing flatfooted while MV's shots caromed off.

The Mustangs took a 15-14 first quarter lead, thanks in part to some good outside shooting by guard Dwayne Pipal, who had six points in the period.

Bob Gregor was able to outsky the Granada front line on several occasions, and point man Ron Low kept pressure on Matador guards near half court to further confound the visitors' offense. In short, the Mats were being out-hustled.

"I think we were a little tight after beating Amador Tuesday night," offered Granada coach Pat Fracisco. "We let them (Monte Vista) bang us around."

Monte Vista head coach Gary Yates acknowledged the free-for-all atmosphere in the area of both baskets, adding, "We tried to come at them aggressively on the boards, because the calls were going both ways."

But the important calls were the ones that weren't made, and the beneficiaries were the Mustangs.

Yates substituted freely, using ten men in the first half. He noted that before the game he'd committed himself to playing everyone, but was quick to add that it wasn't a bad strategy.

"When you're completely overmatched height-wise," he said, "you can't let down on the boards. That's why we were able to get all those follow-up shots in the first half. We were well-rested.

"Anytime I saw a mouth drop open, I subbed."

The Mustangs went cold in the second quarter, allowing Granada to pull ahead, 23-20, by halftime.

With MV leading, 19-14, and 4:56 left until the break, Scott Campbell hit three of four free throws during a five-second interval to bring the Mats within two.

John Walden hit a 10-footer at the 3:20 mark, and the score went to 19-all. Low sank a free throw to give the Mustangs their final look at the lead, then a Dave Campbell tip-in and Rich Guttierez' 10-foot jumper provided Granada with a jumping-off point for its third quarter takeover.

Monte Vista kept it close in the early minutes of the second half, but a skein of fast break and give-and-go lay-ins stretched the Mats' lead to 42-30 by the end of the period.

Granada took control with a fiveminute display of full-court kangaroo ball, the style of running and leaping which lent credence to the contention after the game that, "We're the EBAL's best team right now," voiced by Dave Campbell and coach Fracisco.

The Mustangs struggled to within eight in the early part of the fourth quarter, as the Mats turned to showmanship with a spectacular, if totally needless, submarine job by Walden on Paul Resler, followed by a soap opera death scene by Mike Fracisco which brought father-coach onto the court in a director's role. "Get up. GET UP!" ordered the man.

The Mustangs were having get-up troubles of their own: whether to rely on the pattern offense, or get the ball toward the hoop as quickly as possible and hope for soft roll-offs. Either way, time was a conspirator, and a 16-10 fourth quarter advantage wasn't enough.

Yates found solace in his team's 3-7 league record, pointing out the high incidence of six, eight and ten point margins in the Mustangs' fifth place season.

"I'm awfully proud of this group of young men," he said. They're hurting emotionally right now because they've been coming up short by such narrow margins. But they know the pride of doing the best job they can."

Warriors face Sacto tonight

The Tri-Valley Warriors are home for the first time in 10 days this evening, for a 7 p.m. contest with Sacramento at the Pleasanton Fairgrounds.

The clubs played a game late last night in Sacramento.

These are the top two teams in the five-club Western Basketball Association. The Warriors began the weekend with an 11 percentage point lead over Sacramento.

But the standings mean little now, with playoff berths already assured for the top four teams.

Only the cellar-dwelling Martinez Muirs will be excluded from the post-season competition.

Stockton and San Jose are the other teams sure of a crack at the league championship.

Soccer mementos

A display of gifts and mementos for coaches and players of youth soccer teams is on display now, with sale proceeds to benefit the CYSA under-14 All-Star team which will tour England this summer.

To view and order gifts in Livermore, call 447-7132, in Pleasanton, 846-2521, and in San Ramon, 829-4443.

Jr. grid signups

Pleasanton Junior Football League is accepting early player signups during store hours at Amador Valley Sports Shop in Amador Plaza, or Casa Verde Garden Center on Sunol Blvd.

Boys ages 10-15 are eligible if they fall within weight limits.

League officers include Gene Rega, president, Jack Ellis, vice-president, Sharon Shaw, secretary, and Nino Pompilio, treasurer.

For information, call 846-3688.

Warrior offer

Want to see the Golden State Warriors in action against the Kansas City - Omaha Kings, and at bargain rates?

Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce has put together a package for that March 27 event at the Oakland Coliseum. Selling for $3.50 each, the tickets "which are a $6 value" include a bus trip to and from the Coliseum. Seating is limited to the first 40 people who buy the ticket from the chamber office on Neal Street.

United ref clinic

Ballistic United Soccer Club will run a four week referee clinic beginning Thursday night at Val Vista Recreation Center on Payne St. in Pleasanton.

Ken Mullen will conduct the clinic at 7:15 on four consecutive Thursdays.

The clinic will culminate with a referee's exam for a California Youth Soccer Association certification. There is no charge for the instruction.

For information, call 846-6753.

Jr. golf benefit

Entries are being accepted for the Las Positas Junior Golf Association Adult Benefit Tournament to be held Saturday, March 1, at Las Positas Golf Course in Livermore.

The event is staged to raise money for the youth golfers.

Local merchants and golfers have donated to the prize fund, with a portable television the top prize.

There will be a handicap flight and a blind bogey flight.

Livermore defeats Wolves

For more years than most fans can (or maybe care to) remember, Livermore High School athletic teams have been stuck with the sub-nickname "Pokes." And during the past week, the current Cowboy basketball team has seemed bent on adding the prefix "slow."

Tuesday, Livermore dropped behind Dublin 17-2 in the first period and Friday night the Cowboys fell back 10-2 against San Ramon. However, if Ed St. Clair delays his second favorite hobby, fouling out, long enough things will go well for Livermore. For Big Ed's favorite hobby is scoring, and score he has: 41 against Dublin and 40 Friday night.

St. Clair scored half of his team's 30 fourth quarter points against the winless Wolves as the Cowboys ran away from a 49-49 deadlock which prevailed entering the period.

After St. Clair got the first basket of the game, as is his wont, San Ramon ran off 10 unanswered points as the Cowboy offense slacked off to a sluggish cattle drive pace.

But a string of three fouls and two turnovers by the Wolves in the game's seventh minute gave the Cowboys ample opportunity to pull to within two, 21-19, at the quarter.

St. Clair, who tallied the 'Pokes first 15 points at Dublin, kept Livermore going in this one with 12 initial period points.

The second stanza was by far the sloppiest of the game. Each team commited six turnovers (Livermore had just 10 the entire game) as SR moved out to a 39-32 halftime advantage.

The Cowboys got the lead briefly, at 23-21, when Joe Volponi banked in a rebound of his own previous shot.

But the Wolves man-of-the-hour Jim Hogeboom, who finished with a season-high 26 points, followed up a Joe Fisher drive with a pair of hoops, one off a fine Brad Blake cross-court assist, to give the Wolves some breathing room.

Hogeboom, also an SR tennis player, ran wild in the first half, utilizing his weird high-arching shot to disturb the mesh for 17 points.

At the outset of the second half, Hogeboom gave the Lobos their biggets lead, 41-32, canning a pair of free throws with 30 seconds gone.

However, San Ramon quickly commited two fouls and three turnovers as the 'Pokes ran off an 8-0 skein. Not willing to go down easily, the Wolves got hoops from four different players to realize an identical 8-0 rally.

Unfortunately for the visitors, Livermore had yet another streak up its sleeve; a 19-2 burst, including the last nine of the third quarter.

Volponi penned the handwriting on the wall with a jumper out of the right corner to close out the period, 49-49.

Rich Stewart put the 'Pokes into the lead for good with :54 elapsed in the last quarter when he followed in an almost ludicrous reverse lay-up try by St. Clair.

Big Ed redeemed himself moments later when he substituted a the perfect rendition of the move for preceeding wild toss.

The key to the last period, perhaps, was not St. Clair's domination of the scoring (although Livermore would have been hard pressed without it), but the fact that the 'Pokes commited no turnovers. San Ramon coughed the ball up 22 times during the course of the evening's activities, six times in the fourth stanza.

Somewhat drowned out in the uproar over St. Clair's recent heroics was the steady and aggressive play of Cowboy guard Ted Wood. Despite a slight tendency to shoot from beyond his range, the 6-0 junior distinguished himself with numerous steals and excellent ballhandling.

Fitzsimmons takes lead in L.A. Open

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Obscure Pat FitzSimmons shaved seven strokes off par on as many holes to bolt out of the pack with a course-record seven-under-par 64 Saturday and storm into the third-round lead in the $150,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

FitzSimmons, 24, a nonwinner in his third season on the tour, started the day's play four strokes back but put on an incredible display through the middle of his round and finished with a 205 total, eight-under-par for 54 holes and six strokes in front of the field.

His third-round effort broke by one shot the previous record of 65 on the demanding, 7,028-yard, par-71 Riviera Country Club course, one of the toughest layouts the touring pros play all season.

The curly-haired FitzSimmons, a University of Oregon product, was just another face in the crowd, didn't come close to winning a tournament and didn't make expenses in his first two seasons on the tour.

But he put on fast finishes for placings of fifth and ninth in the last two tournaments, the Bob Hope Desert Classic and the San Diego Open. Those two rank as his career best performances.

He made his lightning move Saturday with a string, starting on the sixth hole in which he had four birdies, then a par, an eagle, and another birdie.

Alameda County Fair - a new battleground

An Editorial

The campaign for "minority one - upmanship" is not new to Oakland, or to any other large urban center. The determination to move that struggle into the suburbs surrounding those troubled urban enclaves is something else again. This suburban valley is the latest target for that action, and the County Fairgrounds at Pleasanton is the bull's eye.

We offer no apology here for the operation of that unique entertainment center on Pleasanton's west flank; nor is any apology needed. Before it was made a "County Fair" in 1912, that same racing oval had been a longtime fixture on the local scene; and even after the county extended minimal financial support for that exposition, the fair still had to rely on one community's backing and one valley's support for several decades before it could achieve financial independence. But it must be noted that success was achieved despite Oakland's political backing, not because of it.

It is no longer important whether the fair has succeeded because of local verve or county muscle. The partnership has been a successful one, and the growth of that one exposition is matched by no other such undertaking in the state. (Cal Expo at Sacramento cannot begin to claim any such success, even with the State of California's considerable investment.)

Neither will appointments to this one fair board suddenly guarantee the interest of Oakland's establishment in this one hinterland venture, any more than inserting "two blacks, two Chicanos and two women" on that board will bring ethnic equity to Alameda County. But there are those prepared to convince their constituency that a grand effort along those lines is worthy of political acclaim.

Supervisors Bates and Cooper represent difficult areas, hammered by racial and economic and sociological problems that suburbia has yet to share. But Oakland and Berkeley will not solve those problems by getting the pot to agree that the kettle is black. Making a grandstand effort to "balance" the makeup of one fair board in far - off Pleasanton is not going to satisfy Oakland's ethnic minority, and it is not going to necessarily improve the Alameda County Fair. The fact is that two earlier appointments which looked to that same Oakland - Berkeley "balance" resulted in poor attendance by those two appointees, and a recent indication by both that they intend to resign that post "because it requires more time and effort than I was given to understand."

If the Oakland establishment wants to now embrace the county fair as a true county - wide effort, then let that city encourage the kind of meaningful, consistent participation which has always come from these valley communities, their press and their people. Let there be appointments of Oakland area people to the fair board which look to energetic input from those appointed, regardless of the color of their skin.

That seems a reasonable enough standard to apply against all county appointments, to whatever panel. But it is not going to happen, not as long as the Oakland - Berkeley white power base reasons that the only answer to its racial turmoil is to spread that malady across the county, and thereby make the cancer less concentrated, even if it doesn't do a damned thing to cure the disease.

WINNER OF CALIFORNIA NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS' AWARD FOR EDITORIAL EXCELLENCE

That Assembly race

If you can look beyond the racial, religious and even political slurs being strewn about the valley, you might remember that there is an election on March 4 to name a new member of the California Assembly from the South County's 15th District.

When this business first started, some three months and 15 candidates ago, this newspaper suggested there were "eight or ten good people" running for that office. We suggested any one of that group might deserve your support. Our vote went to Floyd Mori, because he was as qualified as any in that field, and somewhat better than the average.

The Times was the only newspaper in the South County prepared to project Floyd Mori as a potential winner, and it was because of his "winability" that we reasoned the valley had this "rare opportunity" to send one of our own to Sacramento. Nothing has occured to change that picture, except perhaps that today Floyd Mori is but one step away from achieving his goal. Whether he gets there or not will depend largely on the response of the valley electorate to his candidacy.

This newspaper will not defend Mr. Mori's religion, his ethnic background or his particular lifestyle. Neither will we attack those same characteristics in Guy Puccio, the other contender for that same Assembly post. There must be limits even to political fervor, and we do not believe the fate of this valley or this state's legislature is going to rest with the election of the Messrs. Puccio or Mori.

Our endorsement looks simply to an honest man, schooled in economics and skilled in politics, who offers a refreshing, forthright approach to public service. If the facts that Floyd Mori doesn't drink, supports his church and has a steadfast belief in marriage and family are enough to defeat his candidacy, then we suggest it is our system that is failing, and not the man.

We have the opportunity on March 4 to elect a valley resident to the state legislature for the first time in our history. We are offered also an individual who is no one's captive — not the land developer's, not the environmentalist's and not the extremist from left or right. There was a time when Americans cried out for just such a representative as this. On March 4 we will learn if the people within these several valley centers have the courage to support that conviction.

Arms Race

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

My old friend Alice Cline is honoring the "Governor's 20" in a couple of weeks.

Alice is the Girl Friday for Nick Petris, if I am allowed to pick up a term which originated back in the days of my chauvinistic youth, who decided that sharpshooting members of the constabulary deserve a little recognition every now and then.

She gives Ronald Reagan, the sometime rider of the purple sage who was governor of California for eight years, credit for officially recognizing the "Governor's 20" but the idea was hers and so is the annual dinner at which they are honored.

Alice is listed as coordinator for the event which will be held at Concord's new Sheraton Inn-Airport March 8 with a dinner tariff of $10 a person.

(Remember the days when $10 a plate dinners were fund raising affairs?)

But you can bet your sweet Post Toasties Alice is the moving spirit behind the event which honors the 20 officers of the law in California who can lose ten bullets in a single bullseye from some outrageous distance.

As she does every year,Alice has asked me to attend the event and this time I may show up, though at some risk to my personal welfare.

I am not loved by all of the sharp shooting constabulary. There is a lad named Phillips on the Fremont Police Department, for years head of their pistol team, who would as soon shoot me as shake hands.

Matter of fact I am sure he would far prefer the shooting bit.

Once Phillips stopped me for going some outrageous speed in a thirty-five mile zone while I was driving an ancient Buick with a carburetor so sick three bicycles and a pedestrian had passed me by the time the good officer pulled me to the side of the road.

A man doesn't get by by shouting "I did not!" when the policeman says "You did!" in court but it was easy to get him to admit I was not his favorite character and have the case thrown out on its Post Toasties.

The reason for Phillips antagonism is because I am antagonistic toward all types of firearms and don't much give a hoot in hell who is pulling the trigger.

Probably my aversion was born, or at least conceived, on the 23rd of November, 1943, Thanksgiving Day for a lot of folks in the United States, but the day when I was laid low by a 25 caliber dum dum bullet fired at a high velocity from a rifle held by a member of the Imperial Japanese Marine Corps whom I am sure did not live through the day.

That dislike of firearms grew when I matriculated from Uncle Sugar's armed forces to the San Francisco Call Bulletin where I spent the next five years stumbling over an assortment of cadavers, most of them recently perforated by a leaden pellet ejected at high velocity from the muzzle of a medium caliber handgun.

Frequently in the past I used my dislike for firearms as a barometer for readership, knowing that if anyone read the material which appears in this corner it would evoke a critical responsible from what I cal gun nuts.

Frankly we have so many letter writers in the Livermore -Amador Valley the test is no longer necessary. But my feelings have not changed. I firmly believe all firearms should be kept under lock and key and only issued to their owners for use for a specific purpose — hunting or target shooting — and then only under careful supervision.

If there MUST be marksmen on this tired old globe, however, I prefer they belong to a peace officer's group. A man has to assume the men chosen to protect our lives and property are reasonably sane and responsible, although I have seen more than a few exceptions, one of the most notable in Fremont.

The top 20 must be a dedicated group, spending hours on the firing range to attain winning efficiency. There are times when their ability pays off.

Back in 1947 when I was chasing disasters for the old Call a bandit held up a liquor store and then engaged in a shootout with a pair of lads from the Bureau of Inspectors whose normal duties were with the Fraud Detail, an assignment which involves little shooting.

Their names I will never forget, one was Fred Butts and the other's surname was Mudd, a handle which exactly described what they would have been as the battle raged on and on without bloodshed had it not been for the arrival of one Dan Shelley.

Dan, all six feet six inches of him and brother of the congressman who would one day be mayor of San Francisco, spent a lot of time on the range and was a first class marksman. He stood behind the automobile Butts and Mudd were using for a shield, extended a long arm over its top, fired one shot and The City was minus one bandit and one gun fight immediately thereafter.

Dan didn't want to shoot that bandit but it was necessary. With bullets flying all over the Southern District eventually an innocent wino would have been hit and perhaps killed. . . .and, to paraphrase the Bible, "let not one wino fall."

With that gunfight in mind, I prefer sharp shooting policeman. Let them hit the fellow who is their target not this old man.

So maybe I'll go cheer the top 20 and hope all their buddies continue to shoot straight and not follow the example of Butts and Mudd.

Letters to The Editor

About property

Editor, The Times:

I read with interest the article in the Tuesday February 18 issue of the Valley Times regarding Supervisor Murphy's long - term commitment to individual property rights and I would certainly have to agree that his actions have consistently supported his belief as to what constitutes property rights.

Certainly property rights are important but they are not the only rights that society has to consider nor are they or should they be totally overriding, as John Murphy apparently believes. John Murphy carries his belief to its logical conclusion, given his perspective, in that he rejects land - use planning as a reasonable way for society to order itself. Unfortunately, given today's complexities, land - use planning and zoning is the only defense the average citizen has that someone won't build a factory outside his backyard or run a street through his house just because there is an economic interest for doing so. It is, in the long run, also the best defense that the large landowners around this valley have against high taxes. Every time that John Murphy is able to convince two of his fellow supervisors to approve a leapfrog development (such as the one proposed by Carl Nipper) he, at the same time, convinces the assessor to move in and reassess the surrounding properties considerably upwards.

There are thousands of potentially developable acres in and around this valley. Given the constraints of water and sewage supply, not to mention declining immigration and birthrates, it is literally impossible for all this acreage to develop. Mr. Murphy's philosophy is essentially "first come, first served." He either doesn't see or refuses to recognize that his approach to property rights, given the realities of the taxing situation, would result in a far - flung network of leapfrog development costing the public a fortune to provide services to, as well as being an administrative nightmare, and would furthermore totally fail to protect the property rights of those landowners who love their land and would like to remain in the ranching or agricultural business.

I don't agree with the present taxing practices either . . .

Mr. Murphy has also always been singularly less concerned over the property rights of the small homeowner concerned over the adverse effects of some nearby project than he has over the property rights of the large landowner with development in mind.

Unless you consider development rights the only kind of property right, then it would be more accurate to say that John Murphy has consistently supported development rather than . . .property rights. In fact, given his occupation as a real estate broker, his commitment to development and his power as a supervisor to grant development, perhaps it's not surprising that the public has so often come out on the short end.

Special thanks

Editor,The Times:

I thank all those who have contributed the several hundred tons of old newspapers for the Walpert Workshop for the Mentally Retarded during the past six years.

A special thanks to Francis McGlinchey who has assisted me in collecting newspapers.

With patience and training in the various projects, a substantial number of young people are able to leave the workshop each year and are now self - supporting.

On doctors advice to "slow down" I feel it best to discontinue this work.

The people whose papers I collect will be notified prior to my last pick up. Those who deliver their papers to me, may do so up to and including March 22nd. Mr. McGlinchey will also make his final collection on this date.

Thank you all again.

Policy outline

Editor, The Times:

Your editorial of Wednesday, February 5, 1975, entitled "The Lab's Policies on Public Service," requests an explanation of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory policy on the participation of employees in civic affairs during normal working hours. We have explained the policy to everyone who has inquired. I am glad to outline the policy for you.

The Laboratory policy allows employees to attend meetings during the day if their absence is approved by their supervisors and time off is charged against the individual's accrued vacation leave. In the case of professional and other exempt employees some freedom of rescheduling of working hours is also permitted. The supervisor must determine that such absence does not adversely affect his group's work and that full - time work schedules are maintained by all employees. The supervisor is also responsible for monitoring and accounting for deviations from the normal work schedule.

The policy is based on that of the University of California, which is responsible for management of the Laboratory. The University concurs in our policy, as does the Energy Research and Development Administration, the Federal agency which finances Laboratory operations. The policy is comparable to that of other public agencies and institutions.

We believe our long standing policy is a reasonable one. It strikes a balance between the requirement that employees work full schedules, on the one hand, and, on the other, that they have the opportunity as citizens to participate in civic affairs.

At the present time our records show that 27 of our 5,600 employees hold public positions in the Valley, ten are elected, including three to city councils. The remainder are appointed members of a variety of local committees and boards. I am advised that most of the business of these public bodies is conducted in the evening.

Vote for schools

Editor, The Times:

The League of Women Voters of the Livermore - Amador Valley urges you to vote YES on the two Livermore school tax measurs. The League believes that we must formulate long-range plans for adequate housing of students. Moreover, we must initiate measures immediately to prevent over - crowding. To accomplish these goals, a new source of funds is necessary. Any delay will only make the process of providing proper school facilities more costly.

The League of Women Voters of the Livermore - Amador Valley also wishes to congratulate the School Board for its well - run campaign. It has encouraged citizen participation in decision making, and is conscientiously informing the electorate of the issues.

Croce a whiz

Editor, The Times:

Our school superintendent, Mr. Croce, is a whiz kid on publicity and needs assessment committees, but we have yet to see whether he is more than just a slick politician. The time when we will know is not far away.

Mr. Croce has yet to learn that you must never underestimate the power of a little old lady in tennis shoes (like Rene Bullard). During her term as president at the LEA, the teachers of all three school districts in the valley have formed a unified organization, and now they have had the assertiveness to demand that a poor principal be replaced. This is a case where the chips are down, and how Mr. Croce handles it will show the people at the District whether he is the caliber of educator able to give the District a good school system or just a slick expert in public relations.

Pushing too hard?

I guess I am as dedicated a sports fan as there is.

I mean, I can name the strengths and weaknesses of most players in professional baseball, basketball and football and I'll watch almost any sport on TV(if there's nothing else to do).

However, I think the American mania for sports, which I have aided and abetted through seven years of sports writing, may be pushing too hard.

And no, it's not the big salaries that upset me, for I believe in free enterprise, or even in the big profits that owners receive, but the overall trend of glorifying sports to the exclusion of all else.

The prime example of this is the recent uproar over the elimination of interscholastic sports in San Francisco.

Although I outlined my disagreement with the basic principle of high school sports earlier, I think the rock concerts, fund raising efforts and other attempts to rouse the citizenry of San Francisco deserve comment from a different angle.

First, a student was refused admittance to the Air Force because he couldn't read. This is not a flaw that is singular to San Francisco schools — many high school graduates from all over the country can't read too well or write complete sentences.

In some cases, the kid doesn't care and will never learn but there is a percentage of students who can be helped to read and can be aided to lead productive, tax-payings, ticket-buying lives.

But this, like everything else, costs money. And, if you have been reading anything outside of the sports pages, you will know that schools are in deep trouble financially. They have no money for sports, sure, but they have no money for paper or pencils or teachers or field trips or anything else.

Locally, school districts are dying on the vine, literally, and revenue limit increase elections are going to become an annual event.

Why are there no rock concerts for reading programs? Where are the entertainers and big names in Dublin to plug for MESD?

Where were they last year when the voters in the San Ramon Valley School District twice turned down bond elections that would not have affected their tax rates one penny?

As a result, California High School has no fields. As a result, San Ramon High School remains the ratty - looking slum it has resembled for the last five years. As a result, new buildings will not go up, students will be crowded together and education will suffer.

Where was Bill Graham for that?

Where were you?

Watching the World Series on television, no doubt, along with me.

For Sunday, Feb. 23, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This will be an enjoyable day for you. There'll be one unpleasant turn of events socially but everything will work out nicely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll be busy puttering around to enhance the beauty of your surroundings today. Your methods will cause some disruptions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Information will be passed on to you that you'll find most useful. It will inspire you to start a new project.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The next few days could prove fortunate for you in a material way. An advantage you've hoped for careerwise will present itself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're at your best today in take-charge situations. Others will seek your direction with the exception of a family member.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A lot can be accomplished today through the help of others, if they have a stake in your enterprise. Be willing to share.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will be working out an interesting alliance with a friend, in regard to something social you both hope to accomplish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your actions the next few days will call attention to yourself. Persons in the know will admire you for something you'll achieve.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your present plans can be put to a very profitable use. A social contact will be instrumental in getting you started.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) One with whom you share a close relationship will be lucky for you today, especially if you have an important goal in common.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Agreements worked out today will prove solid and will withstand the test of time for all the parties involved.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions having a direct effect upon your work or career look quite favorable the next couple days. Concentrate on that area.

Jim: "One test of a really great player is that he is willing to trust his own judgment at the risk of looking silly, if the judgment turns out to be wrong."

Oswald: "Ira Rubin of New York is one player who is certainly willing to do this. Here is one of his hands to illustrate. He won the diamond lead and started after spades. East discarded the four of clubs on the second spade and Ira huddled for some time."

Jim: "Ira's huddles are likely to be productive. I assume he decided that East's club discard indicated five clubs."

Oswald: "He certainly did. Then he proceeded to play the whole hand on that assumption."

Jim: "He must have started by running all his trumps, and discarding a heart and two diamonds from dummy."

Oswald: "This produced a six-card ending with East hanging on to four clubs and two hearts. Now Ira cashed his last diamond and East had to chuck a heart to keep his four clubs. Ira cashed dummy's ace of hearts, led a club to his king and another club to dummy's seven to end play East."

Sheriff's department 'very responsive'

The man in charge of the sheriff's burglary detail in all of Southern Alameda County wants the residents of this valley to know that "the sheriff's department is very responsive to the needs and the complaints of the public."

Lt. Wm. Foster visited The Times to comment on a recent news report which recited the woes of a Golf Land enterprise just outside of Livermore. The young Pleasanton couple who own that business complained of "calls and complaints that the sheriff's department never answered."

"Our records indicate we responded to five burglary or vandalism reports from that one business," Lt. Foster contends. He acknowledged that "this kind of thing (vandalism) is running rampant" throughout the county, and he admitted also that "we get hundreds of thousands of calls (like these) in the course of one year." But Foster also argues that the three - car patrol maintained throughout the Amador - Livermore Valley, 24 hours of each day, is "as good as and even better than most small cities are rendering their people."

The burglary detail chief estimates that those three patrol vehicles "cover 300 miles per shift" or almost 1000 miles each day of the year, patrolling the 500 square miles from Altamont to Dublin and Sunol. Total response to "burglary complaints" in the South County are 2400 per year. Lt. Foster admits that "we'd like one more unit" to patrol these two townships and he expects that "the board of supervisors may soon respond to our request."

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE
Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:
• defects in material or workmanship,
• normal road hazard failure,
• premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);
Montgomery Ward will:
1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.
Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.
For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.
Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.
Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

WARDS BATTERY PROTECTION PLAN
Montgomery Ward will replace this battery at no cost to the original owner if it fails to accept and hold a charge in non-commercial passenger car use during the Free Replacement Period shown:
TOTAL GUARANTEE PERIOD: 60 48 42 36 24 18 Mos.
FREE REPLACEMENT PERIOD: 24 16 12 9 6 3 Mos.
After this period, to the end of the guarantee period, Montgomery Ward will replace the battery, charging only a pro-rated amount for the time since purchase, based on the current regular selling price less trade-in. Batteries in commercial use are guaranteed on a similar basis for half of the specified periods. Commercial use is defined as use in any vehicle for other than family or personal use.
For service under this guarantee, return battery with evidence of date of purchase to any Montgomery Ward branch.

Rainbow Trout With Sherry Almond Sauce

Prepare trout by blending paprika, salt and pepper in small dish. Rub the trout well with the mixture, inside and out. Spread corn meal on board and roll the trout in the corn meal. Put trout in hot oil and fry 10 minutes on one side and 5 minutes on the other side. Put on heated platter and keep hot. Mix Sauce.

Sauce:
¼ Lb. finely crushed almonds
¼ Lb. butter
½ cup dry Sherry
¼ teaspoon Tarragon

Melt butter, add almonds and brown 3 minutes. Stir constantly and blend in tarragon and add Sherry. Heat until hot, pour over trout.
